The project is a part of the The Leonardo da Vinci Programme for 2013, aiming to provide to mobility participants, that is young employees and unemployed people, knowledge and specific competences in IRMO and working experience in Italy in the field of European project planning and management. There are 22 sending partners form Croatia and 12 receiving partners in Italy. Venice International University is one of the receiving institutions of the ICroME project.

ICrome is funded by the EU and will cover the participants' cost of travel and living costs in the course of training placement, as well as the cost of preparation activities and the management of the project.

The specific aim of the ICrome project is to train 38 newly-graduates, young professionals and unemployed people in the field of EU funded projects in IRMO and in an one of the proposed host institutions in Italy. The duration of the training placement will depend on the type of trainee: unemployed young graduates (17 participants) will follow an intensive three months, 13 weeks, practical working traineeship, whereas the people employed at the sending institutions - employed participants – (21 participants) will follow a shorter, one-month long, 5 weeks, training placement. There will be two mobility periods: the 1st between February and April and the 2nd between May and August 2014.

Lead applicant: Institute for Development and International Relations IRMO

For a detailed description of the project please visit: http://www.irmo.hr/node/1806