Within the area Green Economy, in 2009-2011 the TEN Center was involved in a research of the Corila – Consortium for Coordination of Research Activities concerning the Venice Lagoon, aimed at studying redevelopment opportunities for the industrial Area of Venice, Porto Marghera, taking into account also the environmental issues.

Within this research the TEN Center studied opportunities and constraints of the development of the area as an eco-industrial park and its environmental impacts over the last decade.

The final report of the project was delivered in March 2011.
